

A photograph of a long, narrow hallway in a building under renovation. The floor is covered in debris, including broken concrete, dust, and several large, grey, flexible pipes. The walls are white and appear to be in the process of being finished. At the end of the hallway, there is a bright light source, possibly a window or an open door. The overall atmosphere is one of a work-in-progress space.

Block -8 back
2 nd floor