

A photograph of a roof top under construction. The floor is a flat, light-colored concrete slab. A low wall made of grey concrete blocks runs along the perimeter. On top of this wall, a series of vertical concrete pillars are spaced out, with horizontal beams connecting them to form a railing or support structure. The sky is blue with some white clouds. A green tarp is on the floor near the wall. A rusty metal pole is on the left. A small piece of wood lies on the floor in the foreground.
