The first of these is the fact that the world is not a uniform whole, but a collection of many different parts, each with its own characteristics and laws.
 These parts are not only different from each other, but they are also different from the whole. This is the principle of the "parts-whole" relationship, which is one of the most important in philosophy.
 It is the basis of all science, and it is the foundation of all knowledge.
 The second of these is the fact that the world is not a static whole, but a dynamic whole, which is constantly changing and evolving. This is the principle of the "process-whole" relationship, which is also one of the most important in philosophy. It is the basis of all history, and it is the foundation of all progress.
 The third of these is the fact that the world is not a simple whole, but a complex whole, which is made up of many different parts, each of which is itself a complex whole. This is the principle of the "complex-whole" relationship, which is also one of the most important
 art, and it is the foundation of all beauty.
